“Traditional Muscogee gone modern with a New York City twist, I provide beautiful fine art for empty spaces and create immersive performance art experiences. After more than a decade performing music on the world stage in NYC, I returned home to Oklahoma where I focus full time on artmaking and creating new work. My original designs, achieved in the form of seed beads and acrylic on canvas, are heavily influenced by my Muscogee (Creek) heritage in addition to my Fuswalgi (Bird clan), all guided by nature. Inspiration for my work comes from my life and collaborations in NYC, and a propensity to always be creating something new, interesting, and relevant.”
