

Jennifer Berg

Tribal Affiliation: Navajo

Knitwear designer Jennifer Berg grew up on the Navajo reservation in Arizona. She draws inspiration for her designs from her heritage as well as the beautiful landscapes. She has been designing for 5 years and has a desire to use her work to bring awareness for her people, Diné (Navajo). By creating wearable artwork, others can respectfully join her in sharing about a people group who are often forgotten. Join Jennifer in her journey as she teaches, designs, and amplifies indigenous designs in the knitting community. Berg says, "I like it when a simple strand of yarn can be transformed into something that has tension, meaning, and purpose. Wearable artwork explores the world with its creator and brightens the eyes and minds of others. The time it takes to create each piece is meaningful and beautiful and worthwhile."

1. "Sheep Camp Sweater" / hand-knit sweater / size small
2. "Phases Sweater" / hand-knit sweater / size small
3. "Eye Dazzler Sweater" / hand-knit sweater / size small

